Gage reinstated

Commission finds Gage firing unwarranted

by DANNY LEVINSON

The Canadian University Press commission recommended yesterday that Sandy Gage be reinstated as Editor-in-Chief of the McGill Daily.

The conclusion of the commission's report read: "The members of the commission agree that they would not as journalists have printed the McGill Daily story of November 11 in precisely its original form. Poorly written, and badly timed, the commission feels that the commercial press' failure to pick it up was more a reflection on its news value rather than on its accuracy; however, none of these factors, even if true, are necessarily reasons for the dismissing of an editor."

Furthermore, the commission noted that "some of the issues that clouded Daily-Students' Council relations likely had a significant effect on the amount of controversy aroused by the article and the subsequent Council decision".

The two major questions taken into account by the commission were "Did Editor Gage violate the spirit of the CUP Charter and Code of Ethics in publishing the story, and if such a breach did occur, did it constitute sufficient grounds for his dismissal?" and "What information was available to Gage before the date of publication and was it adequate to justify publication?"

The commission members concluded that although the story fell below acceptable standards on several points, they were unable to fault Gage and his reporters with any major breach of journalistic responsibilities.

Furthermore, the report said that the story could have been handled in a far less controversial manner, that it was badly timed and that the style was poor.

The commission found that the two sources for the story were Daily reporter Ellen Roseman, who interviewed Dr. Yong, and an unidentified source who said he had knowledge that "one of Dr. Yong's projects entailed research designed to provide U.S. pilots in Viet Nam with a method of determining from the air if soil would support a landing of wheeled aircraft".

According to the commission, Gage had no reason to doubt either his privileged source or GAGE RETURNS: Daily editor Sandy Gage is welcomed with a standing ovation as he takes his seat at the Council table during last night's meeting. Council reinstated the editor following release of a CUP Commission report which termed his firing unwarranted.

Council unanimous; referendum turned down

by JUDY REBICK and ROBERT CHODOS

Reversing its course of the last two weeks, the Students' Council moved swiftly last night to reinstate Sandy Gage as Editor-in-Chief of the McGill Daily.

After defeating an amendment which called for a referendum on the issue, Council unanimously voted to return to Gage the position of Editor-in-Chief which they had snatched away from him two weeks ago.

Although several Council members expressed reservations, the only dissent came in the form of three abstentions, from Phillip Gooch of Architecture and Murray Segal and Taro Alepian of Engineering.

The motion to reinstate Gage was presented by Bob Vineberg of Law, who had voted against Gage at the two previous Council meetings. In introducing his motion Vineberg said, "In the light of the Open Meeting and the CUP report I personally would like to apologize to Mr. Gage."

The report of the Canadian University Press commission investigating Gage's firing, submitted several hours before the Council meeting, recommended that Gage be reinstated. The commisioners concluded that although they felt that the story "Researcher aids Viet war" was "poorly written and badly timed," this was not sufficient reason to fire an Editor-in-Chief.

External Vice-President Arnie Aberman, one of the leaders of the attack on Gage at previous meetings, also voted for the motion. However, Aberman said he still believed Gage to be "incompetent".

Committee to rule on constitutions

Judicial powers clarified

by CLARA MIAN

The Students' Council last night passed a motion to empower the Judicial Committee to rule on the constitutions of the Students' Society and any of its organizations.

The motion, presented by Bob Vineberg (Law), read that "the Judicial Committee of the Students' Society as created by Council has the power to rule on the Constitution of the Students' Society and the constitutions of all clubs and societies of the Students' Society, and in regard to all rules and regulations of the University and the Students' Society, with respect to alleged violations thereof on the part of all students and organs of the Students' Society."

Engineering representative Murray Segal proposed an amendment, which was passed, to read "that the Judicial Committee be so empowered only after the commission of an act alleged to be a violation of the Students' Society or any other constitution under the Students' Society or any other rule or regulation of the University or of the Students' Society."

A sub-amendment was proposed to the effect that any member of the Students' Society be empowered to ask the Judicial Committee to decide on any alleged violation.

Vineberg said this would turn the Committee into a five-days-a-week court for all students.

Ronald Berger, Chairman of the Judicial Committee, said the Committee must sit in judgment of any case brought up before it. He preferred "not to pronounce" on this question, but said that individual claims of rights would bring a "barrage to clutter up the work."

The sub-amendment was defeated.

BULLETIN

Students' Council this morning passed a motion to hold a referendum February 8 to decide whether McGill should belong to CUS, UGEQ or neither.

The ballot shall ask first if students favour membership in any national union. The second part presents a choice between CUS and UGEQ.

The motion was presented by Taro Alepian, Engineering, and seconded by Morris Goldberg, Arts and Science.

UGEQ may reject aid system

L'Union Générale des Etudiants du Québec (UGEQ) indicated Wednesday night that its support for the new provincial student aid system is not unconditional.

At a meeting of its Coordinating Committee (COMCOR) at l'Université de Montréal, UGEQ warned the government of Quebec that it will refuse to support the new system of student aid that the government has proposed unless definite steps are taken towards implementing free post-secondary education.

In its three part resolution, UGEQ demanded that the government respect the agreement it made with the student union last September. The agreement included provisions for a substantial decrease in school fees for the forthcoming year, for an increase in the amount of bursaries available and a proportional decrease in the amount of loans that students are required to undertake, and a complete re-evaluation of the standards according to which financial aid is granted.

The amounts of money to be granted in the new system had been substantially increased from the original government plan after strong lobbying by UGEQ.

DAILY STAFF

There will be a general meeting of the entire Daily staff in the office at 1 pm today. Any member of the interim staff who wishes to continue working on the paper is invited to attend.

Council . . .

"I want to make it clear that this is the McGill Students' Society paper and not my paper. If it were my paper I wouldn't ask Gage to edit it, but it's for the students."

His reasons for voting for the motion were based on the results of Monday's Open Meeting, which passed a motion demanding Gage's reinstatement. "I have said that if I felt an Open Meeting was representative of the students then I would honor it, and that meeting was representative."

The only member of Council to speak against the motion was Segal, who two weeks ago presented the original motion calling for Gage's resignation. His reason for opposing the motion was that he felt "because of yesterday's light turnout in the elections I don't think that we have the right to make the kind of decisions we've been making."

However, he abstained on the motion, saying that "I oppose the action of Council not to go to a referendum for the reinstatement of Mr. Gage. I haven't opposed the motion because I don't wish to impede the work of Council and I must listen to the word of the people."

Alepian gave the following reason for abstaining: "I find the Open Meeting binding on me personally so I'd like to vote for this motion; however, as a representative of Engineering I would have to abstain."

Gooch, the third Council member who abstained, said, "It's too bad Council has been accused of being incompetent. Those members who were against us made it impossible for us to discuss the issue intelligently. They made a mockery of student government; therefore, I will have to abstain on any motion."

Interim editor Mark Feifer supported the motion: "Under the circumstances I think the wisest thing Council could do is to reinstate Mr. Gage." After the motion was passed Feifer gave up his seat on Council to Gage, who was welcomed by a standing ovation from the audience in the Union Ballroom.

Council then retired to the Board Room and Gage returned to the Daily office to put out his paper.

A rose in Spanish Harlem

The average Montrealer who may have noticed the Daily caper in the commercial press probably thinks that the present editor was fired for writing a story about Viet Nam. And maybe it's just as well that way.

The machinations of our undergraduate governors on this whole shebang could fill a Sears Roebuck catalogue with pure, unadulterated, hyperbolic idiocy. Let's leave it at that.

What should have been bothering this campus for the last two weeks, and what the outsider may have got an inkling of, is why a story on Viet Nam research should have needed the prominence we gave it; why the story should have caused the reaction it did in the Administration and in certain segments of the student body for that matter.

It's about time the University came clean on the whole question of the sources of research funds. It is no secret that this institution is having a hard time getting the necessary revenue to operate from the provincial government. And it's fair to assume that many of McGill's benefactors are questioning the long-term value of this school as an investment, in the light of the progress of the 'Quiet Revolution' or what have you. If the defence establishment of greater North America represents a major recourse of this institution for money, the members of this academic community have a right to know it. If the greenbacks are being slapped down to aid a nation at war we have a right to know that too.

Revelations along this line are not an infringement on academic freedom. Rather, an agreement, such as that at the University of Pennsylvania, whereby all research work must be openly published upon completion, prevents an atmosphere of secrecy which can only be detrimental.

If the Daily incident of 1966 is to be remembered, let it be remembered because it showed up the responsibilities of a university to the society of which it is a part, and not for the blustering of student editors or the moralizing of student government.

LETTERS

Chung, Chung, Chung

Dear Sir:

As a member of the staff of interim Editor-in-Chief Mark Feifer, I resent the manner in which any staffers found in the office of the Daily on the night of Dec. 1 were treated. I personally got the impression that you and your staff were members of a victorious army determined to rout the last remaining members of an occupying army. Please remember that not all those working under Mr. Feifer were in disagreement with you, professionally, personally or otherwise. All that was important to myself was that a student publication appear daily on campus, and it was toward this end only that I worked. I still hope that any time I or anyone else chooses to do so, we may be allowed to contribute to our newspaper.

David Choueke, B Eng II

The Hard Line

Dear Sir:

As members of the staff of the "old Daily", we were naturally delighted to get back to the office last night after Council had reinstated our editor. When we entered we were greeted by the desk editor, Alan Kirshen, who asked if we had come to work on the paper. No, we replied, we're just visiting, which in fact we were. At this time, we were under the impression that the interim staff would be putting out today's paper.

While other former staff arrived at the office, Editor Gage was meeting with former Interim Editor Feifer. The results of this confrontation are obvious. Feifer had decided to pull out. We didn't know this when we came to the office last night. The interim staff did. And they soon let us know, for while we stood in awe they began stripping the place. Staffers assembled copy and systematically destroyed it, leaving their litter strewn on the floor. They bared the notice boards and destroyed the ad dummies. Then, assured that they had done as much damage as they could, they left.

We were now faced with publishing a 12-page paper, not only without notice, but beginning after the first deadline had passed. We had no copy. We had no ad layouts. We didn't know what, if anything, had been sent to the printers.

This is what happened. We just thought you should know.

True Liberal

Dear Sir:

First of all I wish to congratulate Michael Benedict, John Fekete, and Bert Kidd for their fine showing at the polls on Wednesday. However, I wish also to have the opportunity to make clear my stand on the Great Council-Daily Dispute.

On November 16, when the Kangaroo Court of the Students' Council declared Mr. Gage's office to be vacant, I clearly enunciated my stand to Bill Lenihan. Although I never did and probably never will see eye-to-eye politically with Mr. Gage, and although I recognize that the former Daily was clearly a slanted paper, I respect and defend Mr. Gage's rights to hold any views he wishes and although perhaps there was cause for disciplining him on the way he was handling the off-editorial content, there was certainly no reason for deposing him on the trumped up charges presented on that "Black Wednesday." For one thing the onus was placed on his shoulders to prove the article in question was not libelous, when in fact the onus should have been on his accusers. (Isn't it funny that a first year Arts student, Marcus R. Kunian BA I had to write the resolution for the Engineering Undergraduate Society).

In my pensketch in the Daily and at the ASUS open meeting for the candidates on Friday I presented the same point of view.

Before I go on, allow me to point out that I have always felt that being on the 'Right' of the political scale pre-supposed certain basic concepts such as respect for the rights of the individual, immunity from being swayed by mob passions, and the general agreement that everyone has the right to disagree. However, on Monday I discovered that collectivism exists surely as strongly on the 'Right' as it does on the 'Left.'

On Monday, in consistency with my stand on the issue, I presented what could be the only motion to be passed at an Open-meeting of the Students' Society, intact and unamended, in many years.

Since then I have had personal insults shoveled upon me by those with whom I had been associated with for many years, those who I felt adhered to the same 'c' conservative views I did, as outlined above. Perhaps I am the only true conservative of the small 'c' variety left on campus. I do not know! I do know, however, that the general attitude of people like Marcus R. Kunian B.A. 1 who sprouted the ignorant statement that I made Judas look like a pauper, is extremely irrational and immature.

In addition, that night Mr. Andrew Schwam told me to resign from the executive of the P.C. Club or he would spread it around that I was a 'Rightist'; i.e. that he would attempt to sabotage my campaign. The P.C. Party may have got rid of Meighen, Bennett, Bracken, Drew, and perhaps Diefenbaker. But I, like 'The Chief' will stand on principle and face the foe, not run.

I have been consistent in my stand on the Daily, I respect anyone's right to disagree with my stand; but I condemn people who are calling me turncoat and in the words of Andrew Rugg, a "fink" for expressing what I believe in. I was the only chance they had of getting someone elected who shared their views in part. They denounced me! I am denouncing them! If I am the only true libertarian left at McGill, then I am proud of the fact and for no reason, opportunistic or otherwise will I compromise my position. Nor will I accept threats of impeachment from the P.C.'s as advanced by Marcus R. Kunian B.A. 1, or by Andrew Schwam, or by any other individual who indicates such a strong lack of respect for the individual, for my views, or for the views of Mr. Gage.

Once again congratulations to the victors. I am sure they will represent us well and honestly.

Jack Donegani, B.A.3

To The Wall

Dear Sir,

November 30, 1966, McGill University. A sad day for the Stalwart, ever dwindling faction of sanity at this venereal (sic) institution. The student council elections are over and the results show a strong favour among the campus plebs for the left wing, anarchistic attitude so feared and despised by the campus intelligentsia. The level heads shake slowly in apprehension as they turn over in their minds what this means to their beloved Old McGill. Creeping, subtle socialism has had its effect on the populace. The infiltrators have done their work well, and the electorate has heard the big lie whispered and shouted so many times that they now believe it. Their rights were being taken away!

Look about you, unfortunates. The rights which you were so afraid of losing have just been given away by you yourselves. Now you must pay the penalty. Wait and watch. Observe as the triumphant tyrants seize greedily the power you have given them, as Lenin and Stalin did before them. Watch as the Philosopher king tries vainly to reason the council into sound action. Watch as your funds and support are exploited for foul purposes. Watch and wait.

Those who can see it coming will slowly slip away to lament the stupidity of the bitter fighting and name calling. They will not return. Their services were there if they were asked for, but they are not wanted. You will call them back again, but they will be gone, when it is too late.

Despair will soon spread among you. The war is over. The best men lost. Long live anarchy!

Arts and Science

Q—Why did you run for Council?

A—There are two basic reasons. I am appalled by the misuse of power by the outgoing Council, and I believe that Council must re-evaluate its priorities.

Q—What new priorities would you like to see established?

A—The basic responsibility of any legislative body is to its constituents, that is, the fundamental purpose of Council is to provide services. Students are here primarily to get an education and Council must involve itself in the whole process of education.

Q—Would you then place a much broader interpretation on the word 'services' than is usual?

A—Yes; Council should provide services in three main areas: finances — the fight for free education, working for better bursaries; working conditions — course design, student rights, housing; and fringe benefits — things like Winter Carnival and dances. So far almost all the emphasis has been in the third area and that is wrong.

Q—What about the CUS-UGEQ issue?

A—First of all, I think the way Council has acted in ignoring this issue has been reprehensible. Realities demand that we be members of UGEQ, but I believe it is both possible and desirable to retain some sort of associate membership in CUS. It is important that we be active in whatever organization we join and not remain isolated from the rest of the student community.

"There are few occasions upon which large bodies of men, such as politics is concerned with, can rise above selfishness, while, on the other hand, there are a very great many circumstances in which populations will fall below selfishness if selfishness is interpreted as enlightened self-interest.

"And among those occasions on which people fall below self-interest are most of the occasions on which they are convinced that they are acting from idealistic motives. Much that passes as idealism is disguised hatred or disguised love of power. When you see large masses of men swayed by what appear to be noble motives, it is as well to look below the surface and ask yourself what it is that makes these motives effective."

Bertrand Russell,
"Human Society in Ethics and Politics"

Benedict

Arts and Science

Q—What do you see as the most immediate objectives for Council?

A—We must settle the Daily issue constitutionally so that such a problem cannot occur in the future. Also the whole issue of McGill's relation to student unions must be re-evaluated. Finally, Council must stop its internal bickering.

Q—Would you rather see McGill in CUS or UGEQ?

A—I would prefer UGEQ to CUS, but I would not press for membership in UGEQ till I could gauge campus opinion. I wouldn't like to ruin our chances forever of joining that organization. But there seems to be a general feeling among Arts and Science students to reconsider the UGEQ question.

Q—How would you try to reconcile the left-right polarization that seems to have developed on campus?

A—This so-called left-right split is not necessarily a bad thing: it shows that there are issues to become divided about. A state with no opposition to Council policies would be much more unhealthy.

Q—Do you think Council has acted in a responsible manner this year?

A—The voters indicated Wednesday by the people they elected that they were dissatisfied with the makeup of the last Council. The main issue on many candidates' platforms was their opposition to last Council's policies, and for that Council is largely to blame.

Q—Are you in favor of constitutional revisions to lessen Council's powers?

A—I would like not so much a lessening of Council's powers as a more responsible way of handling their powers. Open meetings should be binding on Council only in certain circumstances, since it is very easy to pack a meeting. But I would generally support motions to check Council's power.

Kidd

Arts and Science

Q—What do you feel is the most important issue facing the incoming Council?

A—I think that certain constitutional revisions will be necessary to improve the lines along which Council operates at present. I was elected on an activist platform, but a large part of my electorate didn't necessarily vote for this platform. Therefore I would like to create channels through which they could protest.

I would like to see the Judicial Committee become a constitutional judiciary so that future cases such as this year's Daily issue would automatically be brought before a body other than the Students' Council. I also hope to see McGill join UGEQ as early as possible, and participate actively in its operations. I want a revitalization of Council, rather than have Council speculate on campus support for various issues. Primarily I would like to see a definite, clear-cut procedure for legitimate protest established. Vote first, find out if they agree later.

Q—What do you think of the way Council has handled the Daily issue?

A—I feel that Council should have referred the matter to the Judicial Committee, since they are a legislative body, and not a judicial one. This is the basic principle of any democracy.

Q—What is your stand on the UGEQ-CUS issue?

A—I think that a three-part referendum should be held on this issue.

Q—What do you feel are the respective roles that Council and their Judicial Committee should play in student affairs?

A—I think that Council members as the elected representatives of the people should legislate and be responsible to the people. In view of this, I will try to make Open Meetings and referenda more binding on Council than they presently are. The Judicial Committee should judiciate on laws passed by the Council.

Q—What will some of your main aims on Council be?

A—I will try to make the Daily responsible to the Judicial Committee. In addition, I will try to have the student take a greater part in his own affairs and try to re-establish an equilibrium between isolationism and all-out political involvement.

Q—What do you think of the PGSS's recent decision to withdraw from the Students' Society if certain conditions aren't met?

A—I am in agreement with the principle of a graduate home where graduate students can have their own activities. We must have sufficient funds to do this and we must make some financial re-arrangement with the Students' Society. I don't think withdrawal would be a good thing and I think some arrangement could be worked out where we had our own activities but played an active role in the Students' Society.

Q—What do you think of the way Council has acted in the last few months?

A—Council's decisions have been obviously very hasty. Technically, they have been within the word of the law. However, it's obvious that a large number of people are in disagreement with what Council has done. It comes to the question of whether democracy means following the word of the law or the spirit of the law.

Q—Could Council as presently constituted be a viable governing body?

—Yes, it could, if there were proper means of communication between representatives and the rest of the students and if Council didn't ignore the wishes of the students.

Graduate students should come out and voice their opinions. The Students' Society is not being run entirely by undergraduates.

Q—If you and your constituents had different opinions on some question, how would you vote?

A—I am a representative and it is my duty to represent the views of my constituents. I would of course try to convince them that my stand is the right one, but if I couldn't, I would vote according to their wishes.

Q—What about the CUS-UGEQ issue?

A—In principle, I am in full agreement with joining UGEQ. Our first responsibility is to the province. On the other hand, I don't see a convincing rationale for completely withdrawing from CUS.

In an effort to determine the general outlook of the Students' Council that will take office on January 1, members of the Daily staff over the last two days conducted interviews with the newly-elected Council members. The newsfeature was prepared by Peter Allnutt, Marc Rabey, Ellen Roseman, Judy Rebick, Robert Chodos, David Tarlo, Danny Raden, Danny Levinson and Sandy Schecter.

Q—What are your views on student activism?

A—It is the duty of political clubs to represent student political opinion. I feel that neither CUS or UGEQ have any mandate to take political stands on issues that don't affect students as students.

Q—Assuming membership in student unions on this kind of a political basis, which one, CUS or UGEQ, would you rather have McGill join?

A—I would like to see a merger of CUS and UGEQ, perhaps with quasi-autonomy for the Quebec wing. Canada is one country and there should only be one student union for Canadian students.

Q—Do you think that the Daily issue of recent weeks should have been referred to the Judicial Committee instead of letting Council act on it?

A—I don't actually think the Daily was a judicial matter. The only thing the Judicial Committee could have interpreted was the article of the Constitution giving Council the power of "management and control of the McGill Daily."

Q—Do you think Council has acted responsibly in the past year?

A—There is a tendency for any powerful body to abuse its position but I can't think of a better president than McCoubrey. He'll be a hard man to follow.

Q—What do you think of Sandy Gage?

A—Gage was an incompetent. He was typical of so many people on the left here at McGill; they speak from their stomach rather than their heads, often without full knowledge of the issues. I think Feifer's doing an excellent job and the new Daily is much more objective.

Q. Should McGill be a member of a national union of students such as CUS or UGEQ?

A. McGill should stay in CUS because we have had a fairly active role in it so far. UGEQ, however, has its advantages: for example, it is officially recognized by the Quebec government as a bargaining association for students. A thorough investigation of the terms of entry to each organization should be undertaken before students are asked to decide.

Q. How do you feel about the recent Daily controversy?

A. In Engineering, the feeling is that the Daily under Mr. Gage was presenting only one bias. An editor has the right to do this only if he owns the paper. The Daily has to represent the different views of campus because it is owned by the campus.

Q. Do you feel that Gage displayed journalistic irresponsibility in publishing the story entitled "Researcher Aids Viet War"?

A. I would not like to issue a statement on that until the CUP Commission has reported.

Q. Do you feel that Council is as responsible to its electorate as it should be?

A. It is in Engineering; EUS open meetings insure that.

Q. How would you vote in Council if the opinions of your electorate differed with your own?

A. No comment. I feel, however, that referenda should be binding on Council. Open meetings should not.

Q. Would you describe your politics as being of the Right or Left?

A. These terms are obsolete. I would rather be considered a reformist.

Wilson

Engineering

Q. What do you feel to be the major issues facing the incoming Council?

A. The main issue will be the aftermath of the Daily matter. Once this has been dealt with there is the problem of Council's financial crisis and whether it can act rationally to deal with it. Then there is the question of national unions.

Q. To which of these would you give priority?

A. The financial problem, once the Daily issue has been laid to rest. Also, I think we will have to cope with the general problem of Council's rapport with the campus. In Engineering Segal and Alepian have done a good job of consulting their constituents; we've had two open meetings this fall and I would like to see this practice continued whenever contentious issues arise and even in less emotional situations. The SC's basic problem is its prestige and the respect accorded it by campus. I think it is essential for campus organizations and Councillors themselves to stop taking potshots at Council. I think the news media have done a disservice in attacking the Council as an institution when they mean to attack particular members.

Q. What is the role of the student leader?

A. Parenthetically, I don't think Councillors are student leaders in the way that the Executive and leaders of campus organizations are. The role of the student leader should be to create a milieu which allows

Q—Why did you run for Council?

A—I wanted to represent my faculty on the Council.

Q—What do you see as the role of Council?

A—I think mainly it gives practice in running some kind of Government procedure. The real power doesn't lie with the student, but with the Senate. It's a kind of citizenship training... I think Council can make a stand on a political issue, if it represents the students. Who else is going to — there's no other organized student voice.

Q—What is the function of the Daily?

A—In the first place, I think it's clear an editorial policy is not confined to the editorial page, although it should try to be impartial.

Q—Do you think the Daily has to speak for or speak to the students.

Q—What do you think of the way Council has handled the Daily issue?

A—I think that Council should have referred the matter to the Judicial Committee, while leaving Gage as editor.

Q—What is your opinion on the UGEQ-CUS issue?

A—I think that a referendum on both issues should be held; before that, however, I think that both sides of the issue should be clearly presented. This was not the case last year. Since the rules of UGEQ apparently forbid us from belonging to both organizations, I feel that we should belong to UGEQ, rather than CUS. I am, however, speaking for myself now, and not for the nursing faculty.

Q—What do you think should be the role of the Daily on campus?

A—I think the Daily role

Q. What made you decide to run for Council?

A. I wanted to represent the views of my faculty as a representative on Council.

Q. Concerning your pensketch saying you "will strive to maintain the basic human rights and freedoms on this campus such as freedom of the press..." Do you think freedom of the press has been suppressed by the old SC?

A. Yes, I do. In think the whole thing was mishandled. Council did not act within its own right. It acted as a judicial committee.

Q. In your pensketch, you call for McGill's membership in CUS, but you make no mention of status concerning UGEQ. Do you wish to see McGill in UGEQ?

A. I think, personally, that McGill should join UGEQ but the student body as a whole is not ready for UGEQ. However, we must seriously consider this problem. Since the last referendum, the government has recognized UGEQ as sole negotiator for student affairs.

Q—Why did you run for Council ?

A—I've always shown real interest in campus goings-on. I'm very disappointed that a lot of people on Council were using it to express their pet political theories.

Q—How do you feel about UGEQ and CUS ?

A—I'd like to stay out of both for a while. I'd favor withdrawal from CUS. If we had an "Australian ballot" and I had to make a second choice, I guess I'd choose UGEQ, principally because the provincial government is listening to UGEQ. I disagree with their unilingualism. I'm opposed to most forms of student activism.

Q—What do you see as the role of the Daily ?

A—It's a news medium for students. There is a definite place for Review or Expression. I don't like to see the Daily as a springboard for some political group. That's what it has tried to be.

Q—What is the role of Council ?

A—Its main activity is allocating money, and running the students' centre.

Q—What about the current Daily-Council issue ?

A—I think the Council acted a bit prematurely on its first decision. It's unfortunate that no one had thought of the CUP commission. I think Gage should have been suspended pending the report.

Q—Why wasn't the Judicial Committee called in ?

A—The full powers of the Judicial Committee were yet to be decided. Besides, who are seven third-year law students to decide ? I think the Judicial Committee should be strictly a disciplinary committee.

Blau

Q—Why did you run for Council ?

A—I was generally dissatisfied with the growing split on the campus.

Q—What are your feelings about the manner in which Council dealt with the Daily and its Editor-in-Chief ?

A—I think that Sandy Gage should have been suspended pending the results of a CUP investigation, and not fired. Council certainly had the legal right to fire Gage but their moral right to do so is questionable. As for open meetings, I don't think that they should be binding on Council because they are not representative of campus opinion as a whole and furthermore, packing is possible.

Q—What are your feelings about UGEQ and CUS ?

A—I would like to see McGill in UGEQ because I am a Quebec student but would not like to join a monolingual UGEQ, a political UGEQ, or an organization advocating professional syndicalism. As for CUS, I am a Canadian ; therefore I would like to belong to a Canadian organization, but as with UGEQ, not a political one. These organizations cannot speak for everyone, and therefore, should not concentrate on politics but on education.

Q—Do you have any suggestions on how Council representatives can maintain communications with their constituents ?

A—I think that it would be a good idea to devote space in the Daily periodically to the larger faculties so that their representatives can explain the reasons for their actions.

Q—Do you have any general comments ?

A—I would hate to see Council as drastically split as the last one ; Schecter and Aberman are like Russia and the US; they refuse to agree solely because of the principle involved.

Education

Q. How do you feel about students introducing education reform in the university, serving on Senate Committees and so forth?

A. It's not a bad idea but I don't think this type of thing should be allowed to go too far. What do we have professors and the Administration for?

Q. How do you feel about the whole Daily-Council dispute?

A. Council has not handled the situation as well as it could have. But I agree that they had to take some sort of action. Council definitely has to act as publisher. It should have the right to hire and fire the editor as it sees fit.

Q. Should Council refrain from discussing editorials in "managing the Daily"?

A. I don't think you can ignore the editorials since they constitute a forcible piece of information. I don't see why they should not be discussed.

Q. Should the Judicial Committee be able to rule on Council's action?

A. No. If this committee is set up by Council it is, in effect, responsible to Council. I don't think it should be allowed to rule over Council.

Q. Should Council be an absolute body?

A. If this is the way the Constitution is set up then you are in effect giving them absolute power. I think it's the job of the Students' Society to get the right people in.

Q. Should McGill join UGEQ?

A. If it means McGill has to drop out of CUS I don't think they should join UGEQ. I think the national organization is better.

Q. What are the advantages of CUS?

A. I would have to say I haven't explored the whole field. To put it bluntly, I don't know. I don't think the people on campus have all the knowledge to make a decision at this time either.

Q. Should the Council take political stands?

A. The Students' Council is set up to run on campus. To get into political issues which don't concern McGill is asking for trouble.

Dumaresq . . .

should be to inform. The staff should be free to express their own opinions in the editorial columns.

Q—What do you think the role of Council and the Judicial Committee should be ?

A—That is hard to say. As the Judicial Committee is set up right now, I think that it should study a situation, make its recommendations to Council, and then the vote of the SC should be the final authority. In other words, I picture the Judicial Committee as presenting the facts with their own opinions, and then Council having the final say.

Q—How responsible do you think Council should be to the people ?

A—I think that referenda and open meetings should be made more binding on Council.

Q—Since there are only seventy-five members in your faculty how would you look on an attempt to re-apportion the seats on Council ?

A—I feel that there should be some re-apportionment; perhaps Arts and Science should also be split up. I think that above all, there should be a realistic basis for re-apportionment.

Prideaux

A—It should try to do both. If reporting an event, it should be speaking for the students. The editor has a right to edit according to his views. He must bear in mind that there are people who disagree with him.

Q—Did Council have the right to act on the Daily issue ?

A—They had the right if it is written into the Constitution... the charge was irresponsibility. They have some control over the Daily. They acted as a judicial body... I'd have to read the Constitution again.

Q—How about CUS and UGEQ ?

A—CUS is sort of a nonentity... I don't know that I go for student syndicalism... I think we should show French Canada we are as much citizens of this province as they are. There is something to say for us in our being a Quebec voice in CUS. I haven't really decided yet.

the information supplied by Miss Roseman.

In the report, Gage said "that in this particular case an editor has to bear the realities of the situation in mind; news stories of this nature do not normally emanate from official sources voluntarily. With such a story, it is up to the journalist to dig up information from the sources accessible to him to the best of his ability."

An independent legal source told the commission that the article was not libellous. Gage said that the article involved no value judgment.

The commission considered it significant that Dr. Yong had not requested a formal retraction of the story.

As well "the word design is open to various interpretations and any possible military application of the research could be secondary or an insignificant by-product, but from the information Gage had in his possession he could still attach some importance to the Viet Nam aspect."

The commission added: "certainly, it would be foolish to suggest that a misspelled name or incorrect title attached to a person are sufficient grounds for the dismissal of an editor".

(An amendment published in the McGill Daily of Wednesday, November 30, asked that a section 7 be added to Article XV to read "All motions passed at any official meeting of the Students' Society shall be binding on the Students' Council." The following is a sub-amendment).

Membership in the Students' Council

1— Whereas the principle of double representation, is archaic and inconsistent with modern notions of democracy, Whereas membership of the President of the Women's Union on the Students' Council embodies precisely such a principle,

Be it resolved that a referendum be held early in January, which shall contain the following item:

"It is resolved that Art. VIII, 2, d be deleted and the following sub-sections be numbered accordingly."

2— Whereas the syndicalist view of student journalism is that student newspapers are instruments of student government to mobilize students in order to implement policy,

Whereas the liberal view of student journalism holds that student newspapers are designed to inform and to educate, and that they can only do so when they are in tension with student governments,

Whereas membership of the Editor-in-chief of the McGill Daily on the Students' Council and Executive Committee embodies the syndicalist view,

And whereas the underlying structural principles of the Students' Society are liberal rather than syndicalist,

Be it resolved that a referendum be held early in January, which shall contain the following item:

"It is resolved that Art. VIII, 2, e and Art. IX, 2, e be deleted and the following sub-sections be numbered accordingly."

3— Whereas the office of Chairman of the Students' Council and of Chairman of Meetings of the Students' Society is concerned with process, and a good Chairman is committed to political neutrality,

Whereas the office of President of the Students' Society is one of policy-making and implementation, and a good President is strongly committed to these two functions,

Wheras no one person can fulfill simultaneously the conflicting responsibilities of each office,

Be it resolved that a referendum be held early in January, which shall contain the following item:

"It is resolved:

(i) that the words 'a Speaker' shall be inserted between 'shall be' and 'a President' in Art. IV, 1,

(ii) that Art. IV, 2, a shall be deleted and replaced with 'The President shall be chief executive officer, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Students' Council, an ex-officio member of the Executive of all Regular Committees, and shall represent the Students' Society on all official occasions,'

(iii) that Art. IV, 2, a to e be known as Art. IV, 2, b to f, and that Art. IV, 2, a shall read "The Speaker shall preside at all meetings of the Students' Council, Board of Regular Committees, and Students' Society. He shall perform duties similar to those of the Speaker of the House of Commons and shall appoint Deputy Speakers to perform his duties in his absence,'

(iv) that the words 'who shall be Chairman' in Art. VIII, 2, a shall be deleted,

(v) that Art. VIII, 2, a to i be known as Art. VIII, 2, b to j, and that Art. VIII, a read 'the Speaker of the Students' Society, who shall be Chairman,'

(vi) that Art VIII, 3 be deleted and be replaced with 'Meetings shall be on such days and at such hours as the Speaker shall deem fit. The Secretary-Treasurer shall give the members individual notice at least forty-eight hours before each meeting. One half of the members shall constitute a quorum. A meeting shall be called by the Speaker upon receipt by him of a request from the President or one third of the members of Council,'

(vii) that in Art. X, 1 the words 'under the chairmanship ... Students' Society' be deleted,

(viii) that in Art. XV, 1 the word 'President' shall be deteled and replaced with the word 'Speaker,'

(ix) that in Art. XV, 2 the word 'President' shall be deleted and replaced with the words 'Speaker at the request of the President,'

(x) that in Art. XV, 3 the word 'President,' appearing once in each sentence, shall be in each case deleted and replaced with the word 'Speaker.'

4— Whereas the principle of one man, one vote or proportional representation is essential to democracy,

Whereas representation on the Students' Council extends from one Representative per 22 students in the Faculty of Divinity and one Representative per 68 students in the School of Nursing to one Representative per 900 students in Graduate Studies and one Representative per 1875 students in Arts and Science,

Be it resolved that a referendum be held early in January, which shall contain the following item:

"It is resolved that Art. VIII, 2, f to i be deleted and replaced with the following, which shall be known as Art. VIII, 2, e: At least one representative from the following on the basis of one representative per 400 students: the School of Architecture and the Faculty of Engineering; the Faculty of Arts; the School of Commerce; the Faculties of Dentistry and Medicine; the Institute of Education and the Faculty of Music; the Faculty of Graduate Studies and Research; the Faculty of Divinity; the Faculty of Law; the School of Nursing and Physical and Occupational Therapy; and the Faculty of Science."

"It is further resolved that the Chief Returning Officer shall hold by-elections in January to effect these changes."

Elections

5— Whereas the office of Speaker in the Canadian parliamentary tradition is one of utmost neutrality with an emphasis on the rights of minorities,

It is resolved that the referendum contain the following item:

"It is resolved that Art. XII, 2, a and b be known as Art. XII, 2, b and c, and that Art. XII, 2, a read 'The Speaker shall be selected annually between the 7th day of March and the 30th day of March by the Speaker Selection Committee. The Speaker Selection Committee shall be composed of the President-elect, the Vice-president-elect (internal), the Vice-President-elect (External), and the defeated candidate for each of these offices who has the highest vote. The previous Speaker shall preside.'

"It is further resolved that the Secretary-Treasurer of the Students' Society preside over the first meeting of the Speaker Selection Committee."

Function of the Board of Regular Committees

6— Whereas proportional representation reduces the influence of the smaller faculties and schools in the Students' Council,

Whereas it is nevertheless important that these faculties and schools have effective influence on decision-making,

And whereas these groups have very strong representation on the Board of Regular Committees,

Be it resolved that the referendum include the following item:

"It is resolved that Art. X, 2 be deleted and replaced with the following — 'Meetings shall be on such days and at such hours as the Speaker shall deem fit. Half of the members shall constitute a quorum. A meeting shall be called by the Speaker upon receipt by him of a request by half the members.'

"It is further resolved that Art. X, 3 be known as Art. X, 4 and that Art. X, 3 read as follows — 'By a two thirds majority vote, the Board shall be empowered to instruct the Students' Council to reconsider any legislation or review any matter".

Judicial Committee

7— Whereas it is essential that there be a body included in the Constitution with powers to review legislation in view of Constitutional practices and to carry out any other duties which the Students' Council may deem fit,

Be it resolved that a referendum be held early in January, which shall contain the following item:

"It is resolved that the following be known as Art. XI and that all other Articles be numbered accordingly —

ARTICLE XI — Judicial Committee.

(1) The Judicial Committee shall have ultimate authority in determining whether action by the government of the Students' Society is consistent with the Constitution and precedents for action established by the Students' Society.

Proposed Constitutional Amendments

(2) The Committee shall fulfill other duties the Students' Council shall deem fit.

(3) Any student shall petition the Committee to consider a question.

(4) Membership shall be determined by the Law Undergraduate Society, in consultation with the Faculty of Law, and shall be ratified by the Students' Council."

McGill Daily

8— Whereas two important principles for student newspapers are ethical journalism and independence from student government,

Whereas it is important that these principles be Constitutionally defined,

Be it resolved that a referendum be held early in January, which shall contain the following items:

"It is resolved that the following two Articles shall be known as Art. XII and Art. XIII and that all other Articles be numbered accordingly:

ARTICLE XII — McGill Daily

(1) The Daily shall publish each week-day except during holidays.

(2) The Daily shall publish all letters-to-the-editor and articles written by students within the limits of literary, ethical, and space requirements.

(3) The Daily shall be bound by journalistic ethics and shall not publish any editorial which implies any but a neutral attitude in discussing any student election.

(4) The Students' Council shall be responsible for administrative and advertising policies whereas the Managing Board shall be responsible for the non-advertising content.

(5) The Managing Board shall be responsible to the Students' Council through the Editor-in-Chief and shall appoint an Editorial Board, of which the defeated candidate for the office of President of the Students' Society who has the highest vote shall be a member.

(6) The Managing Board shall be selected by the McGill Daily Selection Committee and shall be ratified by the Students' Council. The Committee shall be composed of a Chairman, appointed by the President, five delegates from the Managing Board who are members of the Managing or Editorial Boards and who are not candidates for membership on the new Managing Board, and the defeated candidate for the offices of President, Vice-President (Internal), and Vice-President (External), who has the highest vote.

(7) To secure the dismissal of the Managing Board, any student shall petition the Judicial Committee to determine whether the Managing Board has contravened sections (1), (2), (3), (4) or (5). If the Judicial Committee determines that any one of these sections has been contravened, a majority vote of the Students' Council or of a Students' Society referendum shall effect dismissal.

(8) In the case of dismissal, selection of a new Managing Board shall be determined by the Speaker Selection Committee.

"And it is further resolved that this Article shall be considered to be retroactive to 1st Sept. 1966."

Recall of Students' Council members

9— Whereas the principle that every elected representative is responsible to his constituents is important to democracy,

Whereas elected representatives in Canada at large feel responsible to their constituents because they expect to seek re-election and because members of the same political party exert pressure for fear of electoral defeat,

Whereas candidates do not contest Students' Council offices as members of parties and rarely seek re-election,

Be it resolved that a referendum be held early in January, which shall have the following item:

"It is resolved that the following be known as Art. XIII and all other Articles be numbered accordingly: 'ARTICLE XIII — Recall

Any member of the Students' Council shall be dismissed on the receipt by the Speaker of a petition which requests his dismissal and which contains the signatures of forty percent of his constituents or sixty-five percent of the number who voted at the election at which he was a candidate.

Change in Electoral Laws

10— Whereas it is esssential that the Chief Returning Officer and his staff be politically neutral,

Whereas the Chief Returning Officer has been, by tradition, a member of the Students' Council,

Be it resolved that a referendum be held in early January, which shall have the following item:

"It is resolved that Article I, Interpretation of By-Laws, of the Students' Society of McGill University By-Laws be deleted and be replaced with the following — 'A Chief Returning Officer shall be appointed by the Judicial Committee, and his decisions concerning interpretation of these By-Laws shall be subject to appeal to that Committee.'"

Gordon's return bolsters lineup

Redmen host Waterloo

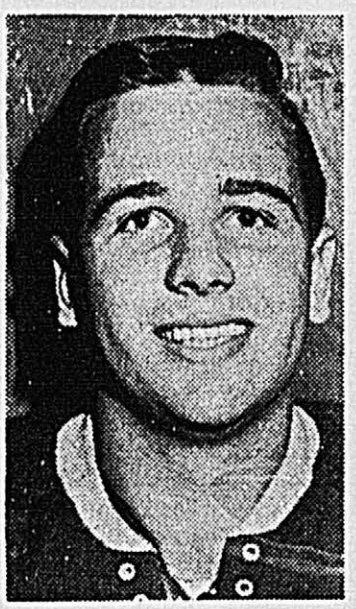
by DAVE CARIN

The Redmen will be looking for their second win of the young season tonight when they host Waterloo Warriors at 8 pm in the Winter Stadium.

Left winger Rick Gordon is slated to return to the Red and White after sitting out a week with groin trouble and his return is welcomed by Coach Dave Copp. However, two other regulars will sit out tonight's game, specifically Rod McCarthy and Les Rombough. Rombough's spot at center has been admirably filled by Terry Harron, the fiery redhead who played his minor league hockey with the TMR Eagles, but McCarthy's absence leaves the defensive corps reduced to four members.

Gordon will skate on a line with Skip Gordon and Jerry Kostandoff while Jean Dupéré, who took Gordon's place against Toronto wil dress as the extra forward. Coach Copp was quite satisfied with Dupéré's performance and will not hesitate to insert him into the lineup if anyone isn't skating, for in the Redmen case, skating is the name of the game.

Coach Copp especially wants to win the game since this is homecoming weekend for past Redmen team members. "From my standpoint this is a big game, and I'm sure the other fellows would like to put on a good show." A win tonight would bring the team back up to the .500 mark and help break up the crowded SIHL standings. The Redmen currently share third place with Laval, Western and McMaster.



RICK GORDON
Returns to lineup

Tonight's start will be Waterloo's first league game of the season, and early reports indicate that they will ice a strong team. The Warriors were last season's "Cinderella" squad, placing third in league standings. They return to this year's campaign boasting practically the same offensive personnel and an improved defence.

The Redmen seem to have shaken the kinks out of their system and judging from last week's performance have finally found their skating legs.

Tribe humbles Mac; Stacey, Kneeland star

by SEYMOUR KAUFMAN

The Tribe scoring guns, silenced during the first two games of the season, exploded with a vengeance as the Indians downed Macdonald 10 - 6 Tuesday night at Macdonald College.

Led by the newly-formed line of Mike Stacey, Rick Walker, and Pete Kneeland who together accounted for five goals and nine points, the Indians jumped into an early 3-0 lead on two goals by Stacey and one by winger Ken Sutherland. For the first time this season the Indian forward lines, no longer harrassed by the punishing bodychecking that characterized the play of Vaudreuil and Sir George, played as cohesive units, shooting and passing with new-found authority.

The Tribe stretched the lead to four goals when Pete Kneeland scored the first of his two goals after being put into the clear by Stacey before John Wilson replied with a goal for Macdonald. Five minutes later the Indians permanently put the game beyond reach when Kneeland, Sutherland, and Britt Doherty all registered goals within the space of twenty-eight seconds.

Macdonald, undaunted by the odds, fought back on goals by Graham Talfree and Greg Clarence and a third period hat trick fashioned by Jean Jacques Bouffart. However the Indians were not to be denied hitting the double figures on outstanding solo efforts by Gilles Schipper and Gary Rankin and a deflection by Rick Walker of a Howie Smith shot.

In spite of the high total of goals against them, there were still some bright spots on the Indian defence. Monty Woods, football star turned hockey defenseman, showed incredible poise in his first game, dishing out stiff bodychecks to unwary Mac forwards.

Improved defence lifts Indian cagers to 79-43 victory

by RALPH COVIENSKY

In an exhibition game Tuesday night, the Indian basketball team continued its winnings ways running over the YMHA Blues 79 - 43 with a magnificent second half.

Steve Hurley was the leading scorer with 17 points on the strength of his outside shooting. Neither Jeff Biteen nor Jerry Fargeon could successfully cover Hurley and only picked up fouls trying. Andy Orris reached former heights after some frustrating games and had 16 points accumulated mainly from strong play under the offensive backboard. Center Steve Fraid played another strong game collecting 15 points, and guards Vinny Lloyd and Jack Wessel came in with 11 and 8 points respectively.

The Blues were a fired up team in the first half and left the floor trailing the Indians only 38-31, but in the second half they simply fell apart. The Indians' defence allowed the Blues only twelve points while collecting 35 themselves.

Indian coach Frank Schieder was pleased with his team's effort and commented that "the defence has shown a marked improvement." Steve Hurley straightforwardly stated, "This was the best defensive ballgame we've played."

The Indians next meet St. Joseph's, December 6.
